Dear Minister,

Consortium of Voluntary Adoption Agencies

We are writing on behalf of all CVAA members to offer our sincere congratulations on your appointment to one of the most important positions in government, supporting the next generation of children and young people to fulfil their potential.

The Consortium of Voluntary Adoption Agencies (CVAA) is the UK-wide membership body for voluntary adoption agencies, who provide over 20% of all placements in England with particular expertise in placing older children, those in sibling groups, of BAME heritage or with a disability. VAAs have long been at the leading edge of adoption practice and have developed many of the adoption support and placement options which are now considered mainstream. VAAs are not-for-profit organisations which continue to innovate and provide a lifelong commitment to the families they support.

We are delighted that the Conservative government included adoption as a manifesto commitment and we look forward to working with you to achieve our common ambitions of reducing waiting times for children and recruiting the adopters needed to provide forever homes for those who cannot live with their birth families.

CVAA have a long history of working in partnership with successive governments and local children's services using our strong links across communities to recruit more adopters and find families for children waiting the longest. However, the development of the regional reform programme has caused considerable disruption over the past three years and, although there are positive relationships being established in some areas, there is an ongoing need for the government to promote ongoing collaborative structures through which RAAs and VAAs can play to their strengths, build trust and work together in the best interests of children and families.

We believe that the structures and decision-making processes for adoption and other care placements require urgent review and would ask you to ensure this is considered as priority in the Government's response to the Independent Review of Children's Social Care. The numbers of children with adoption as their permanency plan has reduced significantly over the past few years, a fall not fully explained by the rise in kinship care placements, which we very much welcome where they are the best plan for the child. We are concerned that many children who could benefit from the excellent outcomes adoption delivers are being denied this opportunity and instead going into long term foster care, which does not provide the lifetime support of an adoptive family and where we have a crisis in recruitment. We would urge you to investigate what is happening to these children as a matter of urgency as part of your reform agenda for children's social care.

CVAA members have welcomed the resources the Government has committed to a national adopter recruitment campaign and the positive announcement on the continuation of the Adoption Support Fund (ASF). We are aware that you have a keen interest in early intervention approaches and would welcome an early meeting to discuss ideas on how CVAA can support you in improving joint working across the adoption system to tackle waiting times and ensure we have the right adopters for the children waiting.

Adoption is a wonderful, positive process which is life-changing for the children and families involved. We would be delighted if you could visit CVAA members to see their work and hear first-hand from the children, young people and parents whose lives have been so enhanced by adoption. CVAA are happy to work with your officials to arrange appropriate visits once your schedule permits.

The CVAA Conference is taking place on 8th and 9th November and we would be delighted if you were willing to speak to the VAA leaders gathered at the event. We appreciate that this is very short notice but hope a virtual contribution might be possible. Delegates will be very keen to understand how you hope to support adoption in your new role.

Once again, many congratulations on your appointment and we look forward to meeting soon and working with you in the months and years ahead.

With our best regards,

Andrew Webb
